Harnessing the Power of Volunteers!

Join us for learning, socializing and an exchange of ideas at our next interpreters gathering.

Volunteers are essential to many organizations and play a significant role in telling our stories, communicating our mission, and making personal connections with visitors and patrons.

We'll explore how to build a great volunteer program from the ground-up, with tips on managing and nurturing volunteers at all stages. We'll discuss ideas for training and enrichment programs, defining expectations, and evaluating volunteer performance.

Bring your lunch and join us for conversation and networking, followed by short presentations and group discussions/breakout sessions.

This event is organized by the National Association for Interpretation Rocky Mountain Region. All are welcome and you do not have to be an NAI member to attend. For more information about NAI please visit: www.interpnet.com
