The Executive Director is responsible for carrying OLT's mission forward while leading fundraising efforts, land protection projects, community outreach and organizational management. The ideal candidate will be enthusiastic about creating broad support for land protection from a diverse base of landowners and community members, and will care deeply for the land and communities of north-central Washington. A person with a sense of humor will be appreciated. The salary is $50-60,000/year DOE, plus a healthcare stipend and other benefits. The position is open until filled, with a first review on March 27, 2019. For a complete job description, go to <http://www.okanoganlandtrust.org>. Working with the OLT Board of Directors, the Executive Director will lead the organizational vision to:

- Be a catalyst for a broad, widely shared effort to sustain the rural culture and environment of north-central Washington;
- Energetically partner with agencies, organizations, landowners, and residents to provide conservation tools and options;
- Develop an effective and sustainable fundraising strategy to fund OLT's operations and conservation work.

Established initially as an all-volunteer organization in 2002, OLT currently holds 27 conservation easements on more than 9,200 acres (with an additional 3,100 in process), and serves eastern Okanogan County and western Ferry County in north-central Washington.
