

Join Our Team as an Urban and Community Forestry Tree Equity Specialist!

Ready to make a difference in Colorado's urban communities? We're seeking a passionate individual to join us as an Urban and Community Forestry Tree Equity Specialist at the Colorado State Forest Service!

As a Tree Equity Specialist, you'll work directly with our Urban and Community Forestry Program Manager to develop state-level grant programs, focusing on fostering urban forestry projects in historically disadvantaged neighborhoods. To learn more, visit our website + apply now!

Location and Flexibility: Based at the CSU Spur campus office in Denver, this role has the potential to offer flexible work arrangements, including remote options. You'll also travel throughout Colorado, occasionally visiting our Fort Collins office and other state locations for meetings and trainings.

Key Responsibilities: From promoting tree canopy growth to supporting community forestry projects, your role will involve a diverse range of tasks, including grant administration, conducting workshops, engaging with local governments, and fostering partnerships with federal, state, and nonprofit organizations.

Skills and Proficiency: We're looking for someone with exceptional technical skills in urban forestry practices and grant administration. You'll need to be proactive, organized, and adept at managing budgets, meeting deadlines, and ensuring grant requirements are met.
